

nel, it will have your support.”

Mr Keegan also wrote to Minister for Housing Eoghan Murphy and Minister for Sport Shane Ross to outline the various functions of the facility.

Dublin city councillors voted to approve plans to build the facility at George's Dock, beside the CHQ building, last December. During a subsequent Leaders' Questions, Mr Varadkar was asked about figures from St Vincent de Paul which showed about 144,000 age” but that he believed “much of this coverage has been ill informed”.

The facility is due to be used for elite slalom squad training, national and international white-water kayaking events, canoe polo and water polo matches, and for tourist and recreational rafting. It will also be used by the fire brigade and other emergency services and local authority staff for rescue training to deal with incidents in fast-moving waters, including floods.

Team Costelloe was out in force to support him – his opera singer daughter Jessica and his second youngest son, William, a fine artist (who also sings) and who now works for the company, bringing to it fresh energy and skills.

William's graphic prints on high-tech bodysuits and leggings were a counterpoint to his father's tailoring, either in oversized Scottish tweed coats, with beaten metal accessories in silver and gold. Baby doll dresses with balloon sleeves, predictable Costelloe favourites, were joined by full-skirted black dresses and jumpsuits with plunging necklines in painterly florals or bold daisy prints.

Jumpsuits didn't feature at JW Anderson's show at Yeomanry House, where craftsmanship and textural richness marked his latest collection. As the creative head of both his own brand and Loewe, Metallics shone through this collection, for the first time, one dress in particular looking as if composed of gold fish scales, with another full-length gown in shining silver metalwork, while others were fashioned in sparkling gold metallics or iridescent fabrics. The emphasis was on sparkle and shade and craftsmanship – the transformative power of light reflecting fabric was clear.

This was a powerful, accessible collection that showed Anderson's mettle in every sense.

Best places for breakfast revealed

MARIE-CLAIRE DIGBY

The best breakfast in Ireland in a five-star hotel is served at Lough Erne Resort in Enniskillen, Co Fermanagh, according to the Georgina Campbell Irish Breakfast Awards, which were announced yesterday.

Eight businesses, from B&Bs to country houses and visitor attractions, were named Ireland's top breakfast venues at the awards, which are now in their fourth year and are presented in association with Fáilte Ireland.

Arán Bakery & Bistro in Kilkenny city was revealed as the winner of a public vote to find Ireland's best brunch, and Ashford Castle received an award in recognition of its sustainability initiatives. In addition, awards were presented to producers of traditional Irish breakfast ingredients.

tality writer Georgina Campbell, founder of the awards, said there had been “marked improvements” in the breakfasts being served in Ireland, especially in the three-star hotel category.

Three-star hotels

“We are considering more three-star hotels than ever before for an award, and this is really heartening, with huge efforts going into producing a fine breakfast from many business owners and their kitchen teams,” she said. “There have been improvements across the board, particularly in the area of food sourcing and local provenance.”

Food producer awards were made in five categories – for breakfast meats, eggs, dairy, fruit and preserves – to McCarthy's of Kanturk, Co Cork; Belview Eggs in Drogheda, Co Louth; the Little Milk Company in Dungarvan, Co Waterford; the Apple Farm in Cahir, Co Tipperary; and Filligans in Glenties, Co Donegal. In addition, the Irish Bread Award was given to Rua Deli & Café in Castlebar, Co Mayo, for its dillisk soda bread.

A shortlist of more than 30 brunch venues was put to a public vote, which was won by Arán Bakery & Bistro. This Kilkenny venue, opened 12 months ago by Bart Pawlukoje and Nicole Server-Pawlukoje, serves an all-day brunch featuring their stone-baked breads made with locally grown and milled heritage grains and a seasonally changing menu.
